The Army. The report of the General of the Army gives in detail the strength of the several branches of the service, and shows the aggregate, as exhibited in the latest returns, to be 2,127 officers, 24,262 men, and 388 officers retired. A portion of this force, however, being necessarily employed in detached or special service, constitutes no part of the force available for actual operations in tho field. The enlisted men of the Signal Corps, Engineer and Ordnance Corps, Ordnance Sergeants, Commissary Sergeants and Hospital Stewards, the prison guard at Fort Leavenworth, and the recruiting detachments amount in the aggregate to 3,463 men, and are employed in the performance of important duties connected with the military establishments, but these duties bring but few of them into active service in the field. The statute now authorizes a total force of twenty-five thousand men, not including the Signal Corps, which has by law four hundred and fifty-six men. I join moat heartily with the General of tho Army in recommending that the effective force of the Army available for field duty be raised to twenty-five thousand men, exclusive of the above-named detachments. I have had occasion in previous reports to express the opinion that a due regard for the safety of settlers...
